FOREWORD

Two of the outstanding events of the year which has elapsed since the last edition appeared were the election of General Eisenhower as President of the United States of America and the death, a few months later, of Mr. Stalin. It is the function of The International Who's Who to record such changes, not to comment on them. Nevertheless, we feel certain that all who use this book will share our hope that the emergence of new leaders in these two great States will, in the words of President Eisenhower, lead to "the lifting from the backs and from the hearts of men of their burden of arms and fears, so that they may find before them a golden age of freedom and peace".

We have made every endeavour to provide our readers with the latest possible information about the people whose names appear in the new edition, and we would once again like to express our thanks to all those who, by completing questionnaires or by correcting proofs sent to them, have enabled us to bring our information up-to-date.

We would particularly like to emphasise the necessity for proofs of entries to be returned to us without delay, as only in this way can we be certain that every entry is as accurate and up-to-date as possible.

22nd May, 1953.
